“I want to have numerate, literate and articulate kids that are going to go out there and make a worthwhile contribution to the community.”

“For me, I find the whole the whole philosophy behind the InnerFit programme great. I think now, particularly as we talk about 21stTwenty-first century learners, we have to look at getting our kids to understand that no matter where they are, the skills that we learn are appropriate whether you're in a classroom, playground or community. Whatever you're doing, the skills that you're learning, the thinking, the curiosity, the problem-solving, the innovation, the collaboration; these are the skills of now.”

Brenda believes this is what her students need and wants them to see that wherever they are, whatever they are doing, this is what needs to be done.

“I'd recommend InnerFit to any other school, as it works. It's the core of what we want. For me as a teacher, it's the core of the philosophy of what I want. I want to have numerate, literate and articulate kids that are going to go out there and they're going to make a worthwhile contribution to the community.”
